

CZH/4/1082 - Timing of birth and subsequent educational achievement and additional support needs: a retrospective cohort study

Childbirth is a critical event that deserves adequate clinical care irrespective of the time of day. There has been a longstanding debate regarding the quality of perinatal care delivered outside standard working hours. We aim to investigate the association between being born out-of-hours and (1) the later development of additional support needs due to disability/health at school age and (2) subsequent educational achievement.
